Crowds and sponsors are flocking to games, the world's best players are arriving regularly on these shores and 2007 World Cup is on the horizon, with England hoping that their recent success abroad will provide a springboard for further glory. At home, faster, shorter and more intense competitions such as Twenty20 and Floodlit matches have been introduced domestically, providing an interesting alternative to the longer test matches more traditionally associated with the sport. Combine these options with the best hospitality available through Keith Prowse and you have the recipe for a great day out.
